

CALL FOR APPLICATIONS 2019

After ten years, Rampenlichter has taken a step forward. From 2019 onwards, the festival will take place every second year and has been lengthened to 14 days of theatre and dance in Munich. This creates two weeks of space for shows, talks, and workshops, fostering a space for interaction and planned or spontaneous artistic activities. This opportunity for encounter doesn't end with the groups simply meeting each other, but this initial meeting marks the starting point for further interaction. The participants introduce each other to their different perspectives and positions, whereby they are able to experience how enriching and productive these differences can be, especially in artistic practice.

Rampenlichter is searching for 18 dance and theatre ensembles from across the globe to come together in Munich for 7 days to perform, develop, create, irritate, and transport their audience to a different world. Dance and theatre productions created and performed by children and youth require a public stage and young artists need a space for artistic interaction.

Thus, for 14 days in July 2019 Munich's Schwere Reiter Theatre transforms into a productive creative space for national and international young performing art. Rampenlichter is searching for artistic collectives in which the adults have handed over their power as the teacher/knower and in which a common exchange and common struggle for the artistic project is developed among all those involved in the project.

Apply today and become a part of Rampenlichter 2019

Selected groups will be invited to stage their performance, watch other productions and take part in the numerous activities geared specifically towards young artists taking place on the festival grounds. German as well as international groups are invited to apply for Rampenlichter with theatre, dance, and dance theatre productions from children and youth:
